City Charter Important Features Of Proposal Listed By Commission Chairman

Atty. Lozier Caplan, chairman of the Salem Charter Commission, has prepared for The News a report on the important features of the proposed charter which will be presented to voters of the city for their approval or rejection at the Nov. 7 general election. Here is that report:

The Charter Commission which you—the voters—elected last year to frame a charter for the City of Salem has completed its work. Your Commission has performed a unique and important public service, the prime purpose of which is to secure "home rule" for the citizens of Salem in accordance with the opportunity afforded us by the Ohio Constitution.

The preamble of the proposed charter states: "We, the people, are . . . accepting the heritage of free people to have the fullest measure of freedom in exercising the powers of local self-government . . ."

'Home Rule' Provision Is Stressed

This charter retains many of the provisions now in effect and, at the same time, eliminates many limitations imposed on our city under the Revised Code of Ohio, and further, adds many benefits to our city in keeping with our changing times.

Some of these important features are:

1. It secures home rule for the city of Salem. It gives us a constitution subject to amendment by the will of the people. We do not have this privilege now.

2. Individual and political party responsibility has been strengthened because the mayor-council form of government has been retained, and better candidates for office and office holders should result.

3. Mayor's administrative responsibilities have been redefined. He has been given a four-year term.

2 Officials Are Mayor-Appointive

6. There is an appointive director of finance. The offices of city treasurer and auditor are abolished and the mayor is permitted to appoint a director of finance, one who is responsible and qualified in municipal finance. This appointment can be rejected by a two-thirds vote of Council.

He will head an integrated department. He will be responsible for the sound procedures established by this charter in the field of finances, budgeting, taxation and fiscal management. He will issue quarterly reports to the mayor, Council and the public on the state of the city's finances.

7. There is an appointive director of law. The law director replaces the city solicitor who is elected in only 11 per cent of charter cities.

8. Capital improvements and state law.

Electors May Recall Official

12. A method of recall by the electors for majority vote. This charter is always subject to change by the will of the people.

13. All municipal boards and commissions have been re-analyzed and each appointive member, as a public service, is to serve without pay.

Above all, this charter recognizes the people as the sole source of governmental power and further imposes on each of us as citizens the duty and responsibility of becoming interested in municipal affairs.

The interested members of your Charter Commission have spent hundreds of man-hours in order to arrive at an agreed, adequate and acceptable document necessary to provide the city of Salem with an efficient, economical and orderly form of government responsive to the demands of the people."

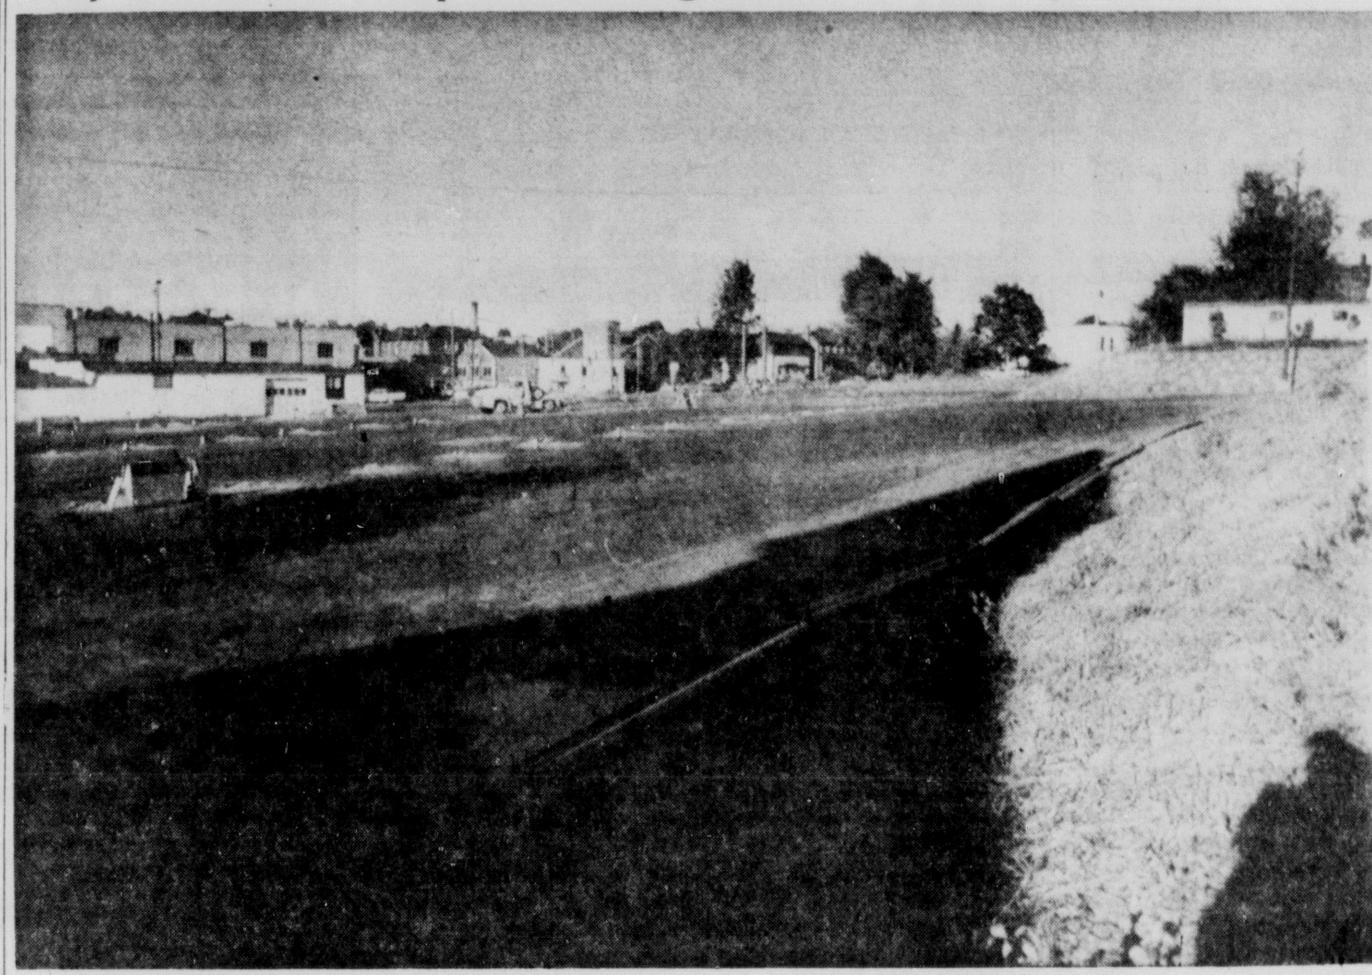

16. In addition to a review, two methods for amendments of this charter are incorporated, one by the electors and one by the council. Each is to be submitted to

Nixon Denies Knight 'Deal'

Former Veep Calls
Charge 'Libelous'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Richard M. Nixon denies he sought a secret deal to get former Gov. Goodwin Knight off the 1962 race for California's Republican gubernatorial nomination.

"False and libelous on its face," the former vice president said Friday of Knight's charge: That Nixon sent an emissary to offer Knight any state job he wanted if Knight withdrew.

"No person representing me or authorized by me has made such a promise," said Nixon.

Knight retorted, "I will disclose the name of Nixon's pressure emissary and present my proof and witnesses at a public press conference within a very few days."

These were the latest developments in a dispute between California's two top Republicans—a long-simmering feud that has come to a boil since Nixon announced his candidacy for governor Wednesday night.

Knight, now a Los Angeles TV commentator, claims Nixon engineered the GOP maneuvering that forced him to step aside as governor in 1958 to allow then U.S. Sen. William F. Knowland to run for that office. Knight ran for Knowland's Senate seat. Both lost badly.

Knight claims—and Nixon denies—that Nixon, then vice president, wanted both men defeated so he could have unquestioned control of California's Republican party.

The latest rupture in the never-cordial relations between Nixon and Knight started in this fashion:

On the eve of Nixon's nationally televised news conference Wednesday night, William A. Munnell, state Democratic chairman, issued a statement claiming a Nixon friend offered Knight a secret deal to withdraw from the race.

The next morning, Knight told newsmen that he had been offered any state job he wanted—including California chief justice—in a telephone call Sept. 7 by a wealthy Republican friend of Nixon's.

Robert Finch, Nixon's 1960 campaign manager, termed Knight's report "totally preposterous."

The Democrats, plagued by intraparty fights for years in California, obviously were happy at the results of the election.

Ribbon - Cutting Ceremonies Set

A ribbon-cutting ceremony at noon Monday will mark the opening of the city's new municipal parking lot on E. Pershing St. between Penn and S. Lundy Avenues.

Officiating at the brief ceremonies will be Mayor Dean Carter, President of City Council Michael Schuller and members of the Salem Retail Merchants Committee headed by Robert S. McCulloch, Jr.

The lot was constructed at a cost of about $120,000, a fourth of which was contributed by downtown merchants. City Council issued $90,000 in mortgage revenue bonds to finance its share of the cost of the project which was initiated by the merchants several years ago.

The merchants committee included Robert McCulloch, Jr., Elliott Hansell, Alden Gross, Herbert Gordon, Horace Schwartz, Jr., and others.

The opening of the new parking facilities will coincide with the new policy of Salem retail stores to stay open until 9 p.m. every Monday. This will be in addition to the regular Friday night openings which have been popular since that schedule was adopted in 1954. Henceforth, the stores opening at noon on Mondays and stay open until 9 p.m.

The third and newest off-street parking lot in downtown Salem has metered stalls for 170 automobiles.

About 35 meters on the south end of the lot will provide 10 hours parking for 25 cents. The others will be set up for five cents an hour.

West Firm On Berlin Troops

Won't Negotiate on Garrison Rights

NEW YORK (AP)—The Western powers are reported to have told the Soviet Union that they have no intention of negotiating with Communist East Germany over the right to keep Allied troops in West Berlin.

The future status of the U.S., British, and French garrisons is one of the critical issues that have arisen in talks held separately by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

This series of New York talks, which began Sept. 21, is ending today, but Rusk and Gromyko plan to meet again in Washington sometime next week.

In Washington, it is understood Gromyko hopes to have a conference also with President Kennedy, but U.S. officials said the meeting has not yet been arranged.

The talks, which actually mark the start of informal negotiations over a compromise settlement, have dealt with three major aspects of the Berlin crisis:

1. Rusk and Home have tried to impress upon Gromyko that the Western powers will fight to defend West Berlin and its access routes. Some aides of the two Western ministers think Soviet Premier Khrushchev now understands that he runs the risk of war if he overplays his hand.

2. Rusk has tried to discover whether Khrushchev is willing to agree to a basis for negotiations on Berlin. If he is, an East-West foreign ministers' conference in November or December seems certain.

3. Rusk and Home have sought to explore the possibilities for success of a foreign ministers' conference. In essence, they want to know whether Khrushchev is willing to compromise or whether he needs to dictate the terms of a settlement.

Gromyko's practice in the talks, Western informants say, has been to repeat stated Soviet policy. Thus he has reaffirmed his government's plan to sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany by the end of the year. Gromyko is said to have argued that troops stationed in Berlin after the treaty is signed would be there by agreement with the East German government.

The West maintains that the troops are in Berlin by right of World War II conquest.

Khrushchev's ultimate objective is complete withdrawal of the Western forces.

Nation Recognized By Turkey, Jordan

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Syria's new civilian regime raised the flag of the Syrian Arab Republic over government buildings today and ordered the ouster of Egyptians in quick sequel to the revolt against Cairo's rule.

All Egyptians, civil and military, were instructed to present themselves at military headquarters Monday for shipment home.

The order, signed by "the commander of the Syrian Arab army," was broadcast by Radio Damascus.

This broadcast and another announcing the flag-raising were monitored in Beirut, capital of neighboring Lebanon.

Premier Mamoun Kuzbari had announced dissolution of the military group that boosted him to power. He promised democracy and constitutional rule.

Kuzbari has not yet proclaimed Syria's independence from President Nasser's United Arab Republic, in which it joined Egypt in February 1958. But the new flags flying over government offices indicated this was just a technicality.

Number Not Known
The exact number of Egyptians in Syria is not known, but there must be several thousand. In addition to the hundreds of government officials who serviced the now-sundered United Arab Republic in Damascus and other cities, there were large numbers of Egyptians holding posts in the Syrian army. There were several units believed composed entirely of Egyptian soldiers.

Egyptian women were asked to stay in their homes today "for their own safety."

This, and a previous communiqué asking Syrians to stop staging demonstrations in support of the revolution, indicated the leaders may have been worried about disorders.

In Beirut the newspaper Lisan al Hal reported the new government, which was named only Friday, freed all political prisoners in Damascus. There was no confirmation in Beirut of the report.

The government waited less than two days after Thursday's virtually bloodless coup to ask foreign diplomats in Damascus to seek recognition by their governments of the new Syrian regime.

Accord Recognition
Turkey and Jordan already have accorded recognition. Iran was reported considering recognition, and Iraq came to Syria's defense. All four nations have long been wary of Nasser's ambitions for a unified Arab state dominated by Egypt.

Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq, Nasser's major counterweight in the continuing Middle East struggle for power, said in a speech in Baghdad that the Iraqi army was alerted "to stand ready in the face of any foreigner, if he tried to interfere in our brother country Syria."

The only Arab leader with a sympathetic word for Nasser as his dream of a single "Arab nation" started crumbling was President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia. He sent Nasser a friendly telegram expressing regret at the revolution and hope the dispute could be settled peacefully.

Radio stations in Damascus and Aleppo broadcast pleas to Syrians to stop staging demonstrations in support of the revolt. They warned that continued excitement might "allow exploiters to infiltrate their ranks."

The Lebanese-Syrian border was still closed, but life appeared moving back toward normal in the country.

Telephone Lines Reopened

Telephone communications, shut off when the revolt started, were reopened, and a flood of calls choked the lines.

Damascus radio also broadcast a word of friendship for Egypt in its morning program.

"Syria extends its hand to sister Egypt to strengthen the aim of the Arab nation on the basis of freedom and equality. We are

From Dulles to McCone

It would have been tactless to mention it before and in the future it may not be police, but super-sleuthing doesn't seem to come off for the United States.

The transfer of responsibility for Central Intelligence Agency from Allen W. Dulles to John A. McCone is as good a time to admit this as any time likely to come along. We never thought Mr. Dulles fitted the picture, and we think Mr. McCone, a businessman patriot who has been working for the federal government in several key spots, notably No. 1 on the Atomic Energy Commission, will have trouble fitting the picture too.

This is not because of any shortcomings either real or imaginary in the two men. It is because of a very real shortcoming in the American people, who are not temperamentally suited for the kind of thing CIA is designed to do.

INTRIGUE, counterspying, duplicity, knives being inserted skillfully between ribs in dark alleys, great plans afoot with no one the wiser and games that justify the candle are contrary to the spirit of the United States. These are things that go with European intrigue and the devious ways of inscrutable Orientals.

American shortcomings came to attention in a disturbing way when the U2 incident reached the headlines. Here was the slickest supersleuthing of the jet-electronics era, but all Americans thought about when the day of reckoning came was the failure of the last U2 mission.

Even the White House reacted improperly, as was pointed out by every knowledgeable critics of President Eisenhowers unwarranted assumption of responsibility. No head of state ever admits he knows anything about a spying project. He pretends he never heard about it before.

Yet, only a year later, despite the Eisenhower assumption of guilt and its explosive consequences, President Kennedy assumed full personal responsibility for the failure of a CIA project in Cuba. Even if it had been a success instead of a fiasco, he should have denied any knowledge of it; that's the classical formula for spying without responsibility.

THERE'S A CODE for this sort of thing, end Americans are not temperamentally suited to live under the code; that's the truth of it.

Everybody wants Mr. McCone to be a great success, just as everybody wanted Mr. Dulles to be a great success.

But the job is being tackled under a heavy handicap. Americans are such honorable, upright, decent, chin-up, eyes-on-the-horizon people that they don't really believe in CIA in the first place.

A Week Just For Dogs

Someone has sent along a reminder that this is National Dog Week, presumably someone connected with the thriving industry of furnishing dogs for the ever-expanding market for high-grade canine pets.

When we see these beautiful specimens of dogdom at its best, we think about dogdom as it seemed to us to be when we had our first dog. Quality in dogs then was of concern only to a few breeders.

The general run of dog owners were not concerned with pedigrees, other than to know the dog they had just acquired was the result of a love match between the canine citizens of good repute. One belonged to the family up the street — the mother — and the father, it was presumed, lived around the corner.

Dogs were graded by loyalty and skill. They were the defenders and companions of children, the guardians of hearth and home, the hunting companions of outdoor man and the scots of otherwise unescorted women.

They were good at keeping down chipmunks and chasing away rabbits, or they had special qualifications for finding and destroying snakes. They were identified only as dogs, not as cocker spaniels, Gordon setters, beagles and boxers. There used to be one general classification called, variously, collies or coolies, and another roughly catalogued as hounds — and that was about the size of it.

If anyone had proposed a week for dogs, it would have been a shock. Come to think of it, it would have been a shock if anyone had proposed a week for anything, because promotion was an unborn art. Like dogs, You didn't promote dogs in those days; they just were.

More demonstrations and more disobedience is publicly planned. The police have taken almost military precautions. The most distinguished philosopher-mathematician in the country, along with a famous clergyman, two of England's best known playwrights, a poet and a scholar have been imprisoned. And there is a long queue of well-known names anxious to share their fate.

All the agitation, of course, is directed towards banning the bomb, or, to be more precise, towards persuading the British to give up their own bomb, regardless of what anyone else may do.

The strange thing about the agitation is that it exists nowhere else in an even faintly comparable form. It is a British phenomenon.

Internal Revenue Service says it will go easy on Amish citizens who refuse to meet their social security obligations, pending settlement by Congress or the federal courts. What kind of settlement?

If Amish and the Mennonites, for example, were excused from paying social security taxes because they didn't believe in old age benefits, how many other exemptions would be claimed under the same reasoning?

That's always the question — whether or not a precedent is being started.

Significantly, one of the proposals for tax reform in the United States is to enact new tax laws free from all the exceptions and exemptions that have been added by Congress and by administrative rulings. The purpose would be to make everybody the same when "rendering unto Caesar." It would be contrary to the spirit and letter of tax equity to excuse anyone from paying taxes, even if he didn't believe in a government policy.

There are dozens and hundreds of government policies the ordinary run of citizens don't believe in, but they pay their taxes.

Warning to Litterbugs

Litterbugs, as a general rule, aren't too obnoxious in the Salem district but it might be well for all motorists to realize that a new state law which went into effect this week increases the penalty for littering the highways.

The penalty now is a $500 fine or 30 days in jail, or both.

Better keep that litterbag handy in your automobile, lest you forget and toss something out the car window. The man behind you could be a state patrolman.

You'll not only be embarrassed. You'll be broke.

You can never depend on the weather except as a topic of conversation.

Once Over

An Army staff sergeant, Jack L. Lawrence, sent by Army to represent it in Fort Jackson, S. C. service golf tournament, turned in high score and was found to be the wrong Lawrence. Army often sends wrong man to wrong place. We should be glad if it limits snafu to golf links. Perhaps mistake occurred, as often, through confusion in communications passing through too many departments. For example:

Message from general to Missouri base: Notify Staff Sgt. Jack L. Lawrence he has qualified in Army golf trials and is to report for tournament at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Reply: Instruction regarding Sgt. Joe B. Lawrence received and carried out.

Message from general: The name is Jack L. not Joe B. Get him to Camp Devens golf tourney at once.

Message from golf course: The Lawrence who reported here for army tournament is no golfer. There must be some mistake.

Pentagon Message: To Army Bases: Check all James K. Lawrences and report immediately which ones are golfers and their present whereabouts.

Message from U.S. Navy: Communication regarding golfers name Lawrence R. Jack must have reached her by error. The Navy is in no position to play golf.

Pentagon to Navy: Disregard message. Army is in a golf crisis but is handling it alone.

in service bowling and softball tournaments. Let me know of any such instances.

Message from Golf Club Tournament Committee! Stop further action. Twelve sergeants named Lawrence have arrived here thinking it's a hockey tournament.

Final statement from White House through Pierre Salinger: In golf nobody can be sure about anything. This could have been case of the wrong Lawrences, wrong Army bases, wrong golf links and wrong armed services clerical staffs.

Lawyer representing two teenagers charged with beating up a policeman, who had told them to move on, told court "The boys should have moved on. You can't argue with a policeman. I assume they were not familiar with the New York law!" Ya mean a decision not to beat up a cop is dependent on familiarity with statutes?

Ex-President Eisenhower, seeing Zsa Zsa Gabor at ceremonial asked, "Who is she?" This gives the Democrats another break.

Expected Reaction

Angry British

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

LONDON—An ignorant and disinterested observer could be forgiven for believing that the British government is in serious trouble at home. There has been civil disobedience round the seats of power in Westminster and outside embassies; and there have been huge and angry demonstrations at Trafalgar Square.

Of course the demonstrations are cranky and crankiness has played a distinguished, even noble, role in British history.

Without English and Scottish cranks whom their contemporaries regarded as tiresome and ill-mannered, such major reforms as the abolition of the slave trade, freedom for Ireland and India, votes for women and a host of other minor revolutions would not have been achieved when they were. The present movement, then, has respectable antecedents.

More demonstrations and more disobedience is publicly planned. The police have taken almost military precautions. The most distinguished philosopher-mathematician in the country, along with a famous clergyman, two of England's best known playwrights, a poet and a scholar have been imprisoned. And there is a long queue of well-known names anxious to share their fate.

All the agitation, of course, is directed towards banning the bomb, or, to be more precise, towards persuading the British to give up their own bomb, regardless of what anyone else may do.

The protest is emotional rather than coldly logical. Officials have no difficulty in poking holes in their reasoning.

The protesters apply, too, the same double standard that most of the neutral nations use. They were shocked by the Russian resumption of testing; but if it had been America that had begun again, their anger would have been ugly and uncontrollable.

See Russia as Underdog

They have a sympathy with Russia as a sort of emotional underdog. The idea of Russia is the more exciting, more non-conformist.

It is true that in large measure he has earned these himself. But also they have been given to him by the voters who have supported him.

And so a man in his position is not a free agent as most of us are. A large interest in him belongs to others. This has weighed heavily with a man of his intelligence.

America means the past, the right-wing success, middle-class comfort, intellectual stifling.

They would fervently deny anti-Americanism. Their admiration for American literary culture is extreme. But the facts remain that they feel happier blaming the American government, perhaps in the same way as a man's choicest and most irrational rages are kept for members of his own family.

Of course there are other reasons too. There is a subconscious resentment over the fact that Britain is no longer a major power and cannot control the world. There is a famine of good causes as a result of Britain's unobtrusive, semi-socialist post-war revolution.

There is an absence of moral exaltation in a well-run state where poverty and injustice are no longer around every corner.

There is a deep anger over the policies and the image of the Macmillan government and the feeling that none of the parties offers any opportunity for expressing it effectively.

Revolt Against Authority

(The Communist party in Britain is not intellectually or, for that matter, morally respectable). And this, too, is part of that vague revolt that has happened all over the West against authority, parents, organized religion, tradition and conformity that in other classes and age groups has expressed itself in irrational juvenile inflation.

The best judgment of administration experts is that the time of greatest danger will come toward mid-1962 if the immediate steel threat is surmounted.

They anticipate that business activity will still be surging ahead strongly during the first half of next year, that unemployment will be shrinking, that raw materials will be coming into tighter supply, and that there will be relatively little idle industrial capacity.

The prospect is that consumers will be buying more automobiles than in any year since boomerang 1955 and that they will be purchasing more houses than in any year since 1957. Government spending will be climbing to a peacetime peak.

Businessmen are expected to respond to the sharp rise in consumer and government spending — and to an accompanying record flow of profits — by greatly expanding their outlays for new plants and machinery.

These developments could be sufficiently powerful to spark a fresh round of inflationary price increases. No one knows for sure.

But there is general agreement that inflationary pressures will become virtually irresistible if the international situation worsens next year and still more defense spending is piled on top of the heavy consumer, business, and government expenditures that now lie ahead.

They are burning up their youth in a bright flame of idealism. And they are providing a mild embarrassment for the government. A learned and closed observer might find cause for gratitude that such idealism—however inconvenient—can still exist.

In the meantime, they are expressing an inexplicable frustration.

Nixon's Ordeal

By RAYMOND MOLEY

gence and conscience.

A MAJOR OBLIGATION is owed to his party. The ideological position of Nixon is somewhere between those of Gov. Rockefeller and Sen. Goldwater.

In a conflict between the two elements in the party represented by those leaders, the party must select a middle ground.

If there were no Nixon, there would be need to invent one — or find a personality now invisible, a personality who would have to be brought into national prominence.

That this has never been easy is shown by the number of times parties have turned to war heroes.

Nixon also has a deep obligation to California. It has accorded him many votes of confidence. He has a profound affection for his native state. And it resounds with the demand for a new governor.

Nixon has had to consider this factor.

He is in demand by his party in many states for help in the 1962 campaigns for the House and the Senate and for governorships.

To face a tough campaign in California, now compounded by the possible necessity of winning the primary against former Gov. Knight, raised the problem of less time and energy to spend nationally.

LIBERAL DEMOCRATS have relished the possibility of seeing Nixon defeated for governor and thus rid of the opponent they fear above all other Republican possibilities.

There are also those who sincerely believe he would be better advised to remain a private citizen. None of the kibitzers have considered the torturing public and private decision he has had to make.

Personal and family considerations may be put aside. Nixon can earn a living regardless of his course. But a man in his position belongs in a sense to his party and his public supporters.

He is a distinct asset to the party and the nation. His value has accrued through his public service in the House, the Senate, in the vice presidency, and as a candidate of his party for the presidency.

He has lived close to the heart-beat of great affairs. Thus he has knowledge and experience of inestimable consequence.

It is true that in large measure he has earned these himself. But also they have been given to him by the voters who have supported him.

And so a man in his position is not a free agent as most of us are. A large interest in him belongs to others. This has weighed heavily with a man of his intelligence.

Free government needs a strong two-party system. And the role of the opposition involves informed and experienced criticism. In whatever position Nixon may occupy, this will be a major test for him.

All these considerations have made Nixon's decision a torturing choice. This should be understood not only in California but over the nation.

It Was No Picnic

By TRUMAN TWILL

I did not go to a picnic all summer. Aside from a few meals eaten al fresco on our own premises, it was a civilized season.

Proper recognition was given to the centuries of striving that made it possible for mankind to eat comfortably. There was no unnatural throwback to cave men and their disgusting habits of tearing flesh apart with their bare hands and stuffing it into their greasy chops while squatting on the grass.

This doesn't signify a decline as far as I am concerned, however, no one thinks of me any more as a likely candidate for picnicking. That suits me fine. I never was a likely candidate.

Yet, in one of those twists of mentality that cannot be accounted for, I was at one time an avid picnicker.

My avidity was for a kind of picnic I never have encountered since. There was no picnic basket and no fuss and bother. We merely stopped by the grocery store and bought beefsteak cut into portions for individual eating, a corresponding number of potatoes suitable for baking, enough buns for the beefsteak—and that was the picnic.

A spoon apiece, a little ladle of butter and some salt in a square of wax paper and a couple tongs completed the list. If it was winter a pot of boiled coffee always hit the spot, but in that event you carried the meat, potatoes, butter, salt and cup inside the coffee pot so it was even simpler than carrying the stuff in your pockets.

That was as simple as a picnic could be. It wasn't until picnicking was blossomed up with a lot of gear and geegaws that the idea turned

Wegner, Armstrong Vows Are Exchanged In Lisbon

Palms, ferns and vases of gladioli and marigolds enhanced the altar of the First Christian Church in Lisbon for the Sunday afternoon wedding of Miss Margaret Wegner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Wegner of Wilmersdorf, West Berlin, Germany, and SPS Wayne F. Armstrong, son of Mrs. Minnie E. Armstrong of RD 4, Lisbon, and the late Joseph D. Armstrong.

Rev. William Spangler officiated at the single ring ceremony.

A half-hour of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Roy Welsh of Lisbon, and included a corsage of pink carnations.

Raymond Guess of Mechanicsburg, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, escorted the bride to the altar. Her floor-length gown of Chantilly Lace, which she brought from Berlin, was styled over princess lines with a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. Her scalloped edged fingertip veil was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade arrangement of white rosebuds and lilies.

Mrs. Renate Wootten of Georgia was matron of honor for her sister. Her yellow Chantilly lace gown was fashioned with a scoop neckline and short sleeves. She wore a white feather headband and carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds.

Carnations tinted to match their gowns were carried by the bridesmaids, Miss Janice Armstrong of Fort Richardson for three years.

Registration Still Open for YWCA's 'Ladies Night Out'

Women may still register for activities on Ladies' Day Out, the Wednesday program at the YWCA to begin next week. Although there has been widespread interest, all scheduled classes can take a limited number of new registrations.

Open to all women, the day is especially designed to accommodate mothers of young children who find it difficult to develop their interests and make new contacts because they are confined at home. To overcome this problem, the YWCA has a child-care service, free of charge, where children may play while their mothers join Y activities. If the mother wishes to stay both morning and afternoon, which is encouraged, the children may bring a sandwich and get milk at the Y for lunch.

Mrs. George Bowman and Mrs. South Metzger are in charge of this free service.

The Christmas workshop is held each Wednesday morning at 10 a.m. The opening session next Wednesday will feature a demonstration "Sweets and Treats for Christmas" by Miss Betty Newton of the Ohio Gas Co.

The dogs are still the reason for it all. They are on hand by the hundreds with their owners. For once in his life, it's the lowly mutt who knows a flea when he sees it—and knows what to do about it—that gets the attention.

There's room, too, for his snooty, pedigreed relative but chances are the perfumed pup would feel a trifle out of place in a dog show that gives an award for the ugliest mutt.

The whole thing began in 1698 as a one-day break in warfare to haggle over the price of man's best friend. The Indians had long admired the tracking and hunting abilities of the dogs raised by the settlers. The settlers were more than glad to part with a hound or two for some nice furs and a gold nugget.

From then until the Revolution it was bullets against arrows except for one day each fall when the peace pipe was lit and the combatants sat down for some fancy trading.

The Revolution brought an end to the bargaining. But in 1927 the local Isaac Walton League and Chamber of Commerce revived it.

screeching out tunes, hog callers bellowing for a lost sow and fox-horn blowers sounding the call to the hunt—are sandwiched in between the morning parade and the afternoon dog auction.

Prices at the auction usually range from a few cents to a dollar or so. Top money of $200 or more for the best hunting dogs exchanges hands in the private deals along the sidelines.

Let's talk about vitamins

Vitamins are the one product you must take on faith. You can't see them, taste them or smell them. That's why it's doubly important always to buy vitamins in a DRUG store, where you have specialists to advise you and where you are assured of getting full value for your money. (Some non-drug-store outlets, you know, charge from four to ten times as much for vitamins of the same potency your pharmacist offers.) So, get the very good habit of buying all health items at a DRUG store—this one.

EPH Week Observance Is Planned

Sunday through Oct. 7 has been designated as "Employ the Physically Handicapped Week."

Plans for the annual observance were formulated Thursday night when the committee met at the Ohio State Employment office, with Byron J. Griffith, general chairman, presiding.

Chester Kridler was named esay chairman to conduct the annual essay contest in eight area high schools. Posters and banners will be exhibited, with direct and mail contacts made with all employers to develop job openings for the handicapped.

Mr. Griffith pointed out that according to the National Health Survey, an estimated 10 percent of the American population are limited in some degree in what they can do because of physical disability or long-term chronic impairment. Some 12,000,000 of them are of employable age. Many, but not all, are at work, the report stated.

The general committee consists of E. Ralph Martin, president of the Kiwanis Club; Earl Wilkinson, president of the Lions Club; Donald DeLane, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; Don England, commander of Amvets; Frank Earley, exalted ruler of the Elks; Howard Jesko, president of the Manufacturers Association; Rev. Bruce E. Milligan, president of the Salem and Vicinity Ministerial Association, religious adviser; Mrs. Esther Engle of the Business and Professional Women's Club; Mrs. W. Ray Pearce, president of Quota Club; Glen Hoobler, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars;

Charles Hincliffe of the United Steel Workers of America; Edwin Furrer, Commander of Disabled American Veterans; Dallas F. Wohnas, commander of the American Legion; Dr. Ralph Vance, medical adviser; and Miss Eleanor Coppersmith, publicity chairwoman.

The Art of Idleness

I am writing this sitting on the balcony of my room in Badrutt's Palace Hotel in the famous Alpine village of St. Moritz, Switzerland, where I have come to perfect my ability to loaf. This is one of the lost arts of our time and may be one of the things most wrong with us. Tension is one of the great diseases of our age and it has put the whole world on edge. We need to learn to relax and let the agitating heat go out of us.

Ever since boyhood I have been one of those hard-driving, always get-there-on-time, get-it-done-at-once individuals. I was brought up to believe that loafing was a sin and that anyone who would not work hard and diligently was lacking in character. Many men of my generation, trained in this point of view, have suffered physical and nervous breakdowns from the harassment of over-driving themselves. They could have saved themselves by learning, along with a zeal for hard work, the art of idleness.

AS PART OF THE PROGRAM of learning how to loaf, I go each morning to St. Moritz Bad to listen to an excellent small symphony orchestra. The crowd around me is composed mostly of Swiss and Germans, there for the mineral baths. It is obvious they are bent on improving their health, for everyone leaves after the concert to take long, serious walks along the lake or through mountain wood and paths. And the walking is slow, without any haste to get anywhere.

Everything is so very beautiful and clear and fresh, surely one can learn the art of idleness in such an idyllic place. Looking out from a window of the Kurhaus one sees up the lovely valley of the upper Engadine 6,000 feet above sea level. All around encompassing the valley are high snow-covered peaks. A cool wind rustles the trees, turning the leaves to show their clean white undersides. Above, a clear blue sky spills warm golden sunshine through crisp 50-degree air.

But the essence of the art of idleness is to remember some of the principles when you return to the mad rush of things. A friend of mine succeeds in doing this. He is a dynamo of energy and turns out prodigious work loads. He doesn't fool but gets right to business. He plans his work and works his plan. He is organized and avoids that aimless fuzziness that results in the swamped feeling which siphons off vitality. I discovered that when he loafed he is just as efficient. When he is idle he doesn't fool either; he is really idle. He knows how to do nothing effectively.

HOW IS THAT? Well, he goes to bed early and gets up late. He plays a little golf with emphasis on the little. He sits in the sun. He takes no telephone calls, writes no letters, doesn't talk shop. He walks slowly and floats when he swims. He will not listen to, or talk about, world affairs, but walks away slowly into the woods, where he sits as much as he walks. This man who is a doer if ever I saw one, is an equally competent do-nothing.

above the murmur of conversation, the colossal silence reached you with its healing touch. You were content to bask in the sun and look upward and wonder and dream and pray a bit.

I never thought I could do it, and be content, but with rucksack on my back, sturdy walking shoes on my feet and a rugged metal-pointed walking stick in my hand. I've been practicing the art of constructive idleness among the mountains of Switzerland.

At half-time or anytime, milk is the perfect pick-up. It's the protein lift that gives you a quick burst of energy to make that first down or block that kick. It's great, too, for late snacks, breakfast or anytime. Have some delicious milk soon. You'll like it!

The Indians could send a rallying call many, many miles by drums. Each drummer, stationed on a lonely ridge, would listen for the sound of distant drums, and relay the message to others waiting across the valley. Overnight a dozen tribes could be rallied to a common cause.

We don't need such crude methods of communication today. Men with a common purpose can join forces around the world at a pre-arranged time.

World Wide Communion Sunday is such an expression of unity. In every Christian land the church bells will summon men and women to the Lord's Supper on this Sunday.

And the universality of this great religious event will not depend on bells relaying the message from town to town. It will depend on folks like yourself coming to their Church to receive this Holy Sacrament.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

East Palestine's Bulldogs continued to march toward their sixth consecutive Tri-County League crown by downing the Leetonia Bears 30-22 at Leetonia Friday night.

The game was a nip and tuck affair with the score being tied twice before the Bulldogs shoved across a TD in the last two minutes of play to secure the win.

Browns Rated Favorites • Over Cowboys

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns' battle for survival continues against the surprising Dallas Cowboys at Municipal Stadium Sunday.

Dallas, with wins over the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Minnesota Vikings, shares the lead in the Eastern Division of the National Football League with the champion Philadelphia Eagles.

The Browns have a 1-1 record and can't afford to lose if they want to stay in contention. They are 12-point favorites over the Cowboys. A crowd of 40,000 is expected.

Coach Paul Brown noted the pre-season favorite's role given the Browns may have been a handicap.

"We had the finger pointed at us as the team to beat," said Brown. "It means we catch everybody's Sunday punch. We don't think there's an overpowering team in the NFL."

Fumble Recovery By Johnson Brings Salem's Only Score

By CARL NANDRASY
News Sports Editor

The Night Riders of Farrell, Pa., knocked the Salem High School grididers from the unbeaten ranks 7-6 Friday night in a hard-fought contest before a homecoming throng of some 3,400 fans in the Farrell Stadium.

For Farrell, the outcome was exacting revenge for the surprising 7-6 upset the Quakers put on the Night Riders last season in Reilly Stadium.

The Quakers again broke out on top first as they have in all their previous contests with a touchdown in the second period on a recovered fumble by center George Johnson in the Farrell end zone. Johnson gained possession of the pigskin after fullback Fred Kaiser had bobbled it going across the goal line on a half-yard plunge up the middle.

Kaiser's touchdown and winning extra point came with only 1:09 remaining in the first half. Quarterback Lynn Stoner dropped floating 11-yard pass into the outstretched arms of right end Nick Generalovich in the right corner of the Salem end zone for the tying TD. The winning point was added on a placement by halfback Fred Somerset with Stoner holding.

Salem was forced to kick any extra point tries since the game was played under Pennsylvania athletic rules which do not allow scoring of extra points of the two-point variety on runs and passes.

THE QUAKERS' extra point placement was tried by Kaiser with quarterback Bill Beery holding, but was low and to the left of the crossbar.

The game itself was definitely one of strong defenses on both sides. But the contest will probably go down as the sloppiest played on offense by both teams all year.

Offensive units of both squads continually fumbled, were penalized, and many times just didn't function with the precision needed to move the pigskin.

Salem itself was penalized seven times for 50 yards, while Farrell caused infractions eight times for a loss of 45 yards. In addition to the penalties called by the officials, players of both teams jumped the gun on both the line and in the backfield many times, but managed to regain position before the ball was snapped.

Both elevens were undoubtedly hampered by losses of star players due to injuries early in the game.

MIDWAY THROUGH the initial period, Salem's starting right tackle Butch Crawford reinjured his right knee when making a tackle after a Salem punt. Crawford was forced to sit out the remainder of the fray, and it was obvious what his loss meant to the Quakers.

However, the Night Riders suffered the same circumstances when they lost their speedy halfback Bob Samuels on the first Farrell play from scrimmage. Samuels was tackled hard after picking up six yards around right end and suffered a dislocated left shoulder.

However, the loss of the injured players was to the respective teams, the two rival coaches were able to come up with adequate substitutes.

Coach Blaine Morton called on junior Bill Winter and sophomore Lloyd Adams to fill Crawford's shoes and they did remarkably well. Both were in on numerous tackles throughout the night and carried out commendable blocking.

Frick also said Jocko Conlan of the National League would be at first base, Frank Umont of the AL at second and Augie Donatelli of the NL at third in Wednesday's inaugural at Yankee Stadium. Bob Stewart of the AL will be stationed on the left field foul line and Shag Crawford of the NL on the right field line.

Maris Blanked In Pursuit Of 61st, But Yankees Win 2-1

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
Roger Maris, returning to the lineup after a two-day rest, failed to hit a ball out of the infield as he walked twice and popped out twice Friday night while the New York Yankees were beating the Boston Red Sox 2-1.

Maris, playing for the first time since he hit his 60th homer Tuesday night and matched Babe Ruth's total of 1927, was blanked by Red Sox right-hander Bill Monbouquette in his pursuit of homerun No. 61.

Maris now has the final two games on the regular season program, against Boston today and

Greenford Bows 30-16 To McDonald

McDonald's Blue Devils won their second game without a loss in Inter-County League play by dumping visiting Greenford 30-16 Friday night.

It was Greenford's second loss in league competition. The Bobcats are 0-3-1 overall.

Greenford shoved across touchdowndowns in the first and final periods while McDonald scored in every quarter but the third.

Greenford's points came on two plunges by quarterback Dave Tyo. Tyo and Ed Fern added the extra points.

Dick Ryan scored 16 of McDonald's points by scampering for two touchdowns and plunging for two sets of extra points.

Minerva Lions Remain Undefeated; Win 18-0

Sunday, in which to hit his 61st home run and become the most productive one-season homer hitter in major league history.

Ruth's record, of course, is safe under the 154-decision ruling of Commissioner Ford Frick.

John Blanchard's 21st homer in the fourth gave the Yanks a 1-0 lead that Whitey Ford protected until he finished his six-inning stint in a final tuneup for the World Series starting Wednesday against the Cincinnati Reds. Blanchard singled Maris, who had walked, home in the ninth to score the other Yankee run.

Ford, who gave up only four hits, finished the season with a 25-4 record. His .862 won-lost percentage is the best in the American League since Cleveland's John Allen compiled a 15-1 record and .938 mark in 1937. Ford's 25 wins are the most in the league since Dave Ferriss of the Red Sox won the same number in 1946.

In the AL, Detroit edged Minnesota 6-4 in 10 innings, Baltimore nipped Chicago 3-2 in 10 innings, Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0 on Pete Burnside's two-hitter and Los Angeles came from behind to beat Cleveland 6-4.

A grand slam homer, by rookie catcher Bob Rodgers, his first homer in the majors, gave the Angels their uphill victory over the Indians.

Potters Whip New Philadelphia 8-6 With Safety

The East Liverpool Potters broke into the win column for the first time in three tries this season when they knocked off the Quakers of New Philadelphia, 8-6, Friday night at New Philadelphia.

Tom Kraft raced 55 yards with an intercepted pass for East Liverpool's touchdown. It came with 3:01 left in the first quarter. An attempted run for the extra points failed.

The Potters' winning margin was provided in the second quarter when a host of East Liverpool linemen trapped New Philly fullback John Nee in his own end zone after a bad pass from center. The safety gave the Potters an 8-0 lead at halftime.

New Philadelphia's only score came midway through the final period. Jack Cargnel threw a 20-yard scoring aerial to Carpenter for the six-pointer. The Quakers missed their chance to gain a tie when the Potters stopped cold their attempted run for the extra points.

The loss for New Philadelphia was its third straight this season. East Liverpool will put its 1-2 record on the line next Friday at home against a rugged Canton Central Catholic eleven.

The big boys — by vote of the experts in the AP's preseason poll — finally flex their muscles today.

Iowa, named No. 1, makes its debut at home against injury-crippled California, and Ohio State, No. 2, will take on possibly sterner opposition in Texas Christian, upset winner over Kansas last week 17-16.

The third member of the preseason top 10 still untested, Michigan State (No. 10), takes on Wisconsin in the Big Ten opener. Wisconsin defeated Utah 7-0 last week.

Second-ranked Mississippi opens defense of its Southeastern Conference title against Kentucky but the big game down South finds Rice (No. 7) meeting Georgia Tech.

Irish, Sooners On TV

West Virginia, victoryless in its last 17 starts, takes on fifth-ranked Syracuse.

The week's nationally televised game (ABC-TV 3:30 Salem Area Time) matches Oklahoma and Notre Dame, each making its first start of the year.

Illinois opens its season against Washington, Michigan figures as a slight underdog in its game with UCLA (No. 9) and national champion Minnesota meets a strong Missouri eleven.

Alabama (No. 4) takes on Tulane in an SEC contest and Texas (No. 6) meets Texas Tech in a Southwestern Conference game.

The Minerva Lions rolled to their fourth straight victory Friday night by shutting out the visiting Columbiana Clippers 18-0.

Gary Nigro accounted for two of the winners' scores and Willie Bingham added the one remaining tally.

Minerva's first score came late in the first half. The Lions punted to the Clippers' 13 yard line and on the next play Bingham snatched a Columbian pass and sprinted 27 yards for the TD.

After a scoreless third period Nigro went off left tackle for 47 yards on a keeper play. The touchdown run came just two plays after the losers punted to the 50-yard line. Nigro scored the last tally on a seven-yard sweep around left end.

Minerva's Lions travel to Leetonia next Friday to battle the Bears while Columbiana will entertain Canfield.

Blast Not Attempt to Kill Nehru

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A senior police official said today an explosion in a crowded street shortly after Prime Minister Nehru rode by in a car was not an assassination attempt.

Nehru himself shrugged off the incident and said he did not even know about it until he got home Friday night.

"Then," he said, "police told me that there had been a cracker explosion." Indians use this expression in referring to a firecracker sometimes placed in a bottle or wrapped in mud or stones.

Appearing at an integration conference here this morning, Nehru told newsmen with a smile: "It seems to have created a little more excitement in London and Washington than here. I had two cables from London and Washington." He did not identify the senders, other than to say one was "a colleague."

The blast came in the teeming quarter of Old Delhi where Nehru went to attend a Gandhi birthday celebration. It went off as thousands of persons broke through police lines to watch the prime minister's motorcade go past.

Police said Nehru's car was more than a mile away when the explosion occurred. An official said, "It might have been a demonstration against something or other, but we do not know what."

Reports that the street lights suddenly went off before and after the blast created suspicions among some officials that it might have been a planned attack on the prime minister that misfired.

Delhi's Chief Magistrate Bose Mullick said, "It was planned by mischief-makers." Nehru skipped a scheduled visit to the historic centuries-old marketing center of Chandni Chauk on his way home as security officers apparently decided to take no chances.

A policeman and five other persons were slightly injured by the blast.

Team Holds Practice In Pasture: It Figures

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The Northeastern University football squad today held the dubious distinction of being one of the few to hold a practice in a pasture.

It happened Friday night to climax a series of misadventures en route to Northfield to play Norwich University today.

First a black cat ran in front of the bus in Enfield, N.H. Next the bus nearly collided with two horses in the middle of the road. Then the bus stalled midway up a hill. The 38 players pushed the vehicle to the top and coasted it downhill to a garage.

While waiting for another bus, Coach Joseph Zabilski ordered a practice session in a pasture adjoining the garage. He put his charges through an hour of offensive and defensive formations.

The squad finally arrived here for an overnight stay before proceeding to Northfield.

CRASH FATAL TO WOMAN

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Goldie Bailey, 45, was killed Friday when the car in which she was riding collided with a truck on Ohio 75 at nearby Pedro, where she lived. Four other persons were hurt, including Mrs. Bailey's two sons.

Lisbon Lions Fair To Conclude Tonight

LISBON — A fair-sized crowd attended the second evening session of the Lisbon's Lions street Fair Friday.

A parade is scheduled for 7 tonight, the last night of the fair. The parade will form at 6:30 p.m. at the fair grounds and will move through village streets.

A children's matinee was held this afternoon. Proceeds from the affair are used for the club's sight conservation projects.

MAN DIES IN CRASH

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Ray Moore, 36, of Claridon Township, was injured fatally Friday when his dump truck upset and he was pinned beneath the vehicle at a road construction site.

Forfeiting bonds were Glenn W. Gibbs, 44, Toronto, $20, failing to stop within the assured clear distance; Garry A. Lingel, 20, Toledo, Donald L. Eddy, 20, Akron, and Frank J. Gloszak, 23, Cleveland, $15 bond each for speeding.

WOMAN DIES IN BLAST

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A kerosene stove exploded in the kitchen of a home Friday night, killing Mrs. Gladys Hunt, 54. William Hunt, the victim's husband, made a vain attempt to reach his wife and received minor head and face burns. He was in another room when the explosion, followed by a fire, occurred.

TECHNICAL UNIT DEDICATED

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A $5 million technical center was dedicated here Friday, bringing the scattered half-dozen research facilities of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. to a single location.

The 12-building complex, about 30 miles east of Columbus, was dedicated in honor of Dr. Games Slayter, an Owens-Corning vice president.
